Daily Market News Reports

The Century Farms Program was created to honor families who have owned and farmed the same land for at least 100 years. Since 1974, more than 350 properties have been designated as Century Farms in South Carolina. To qualify, a portion of the original property must remain intact and the line of family ownership must be unbroken.

Walker Century Farms Back to the Past!

By Marsha Hewitt,
Editor, SC Market Bulletin

Not only do Drs. Bill and Nancy Walker live on a Century Farm in Anderson County, they have adopted the farming practices of more than a century ago. Their sustainable farm is based on raising heritage cattle and pigs, maintaining rotational grazing, and using time-honored natural management methods.

The Walker farm has been in Bill's family since the 1890s. Bill is a practicing physician; Nancy is a retired Clemson University professor with a degree in agronomy. They began sustainable farming on their property about 10 years ago.

"Our main focus is to produce healthy, quality food for our local community. We concentrate on grass-fed beef and pastured pork," Nancy said. They have added free-range chickens and goats to the farm's livestock, along with hives of bees.

"What sets us apart is that we use intensive rotational grazing and no chemicals," Nancy explained as she walked up the hill to check a water tank for their herd of Red Devon cattle. The grassy pasture is divided into pie-shaped wedges by electric fencing, so the owners can easily move the cattle from one section to another.

Sleek red cattle graze contentedly on natural grasses, which are maintained without fertilizer. Small herds are allowed to crop the grass down to four to six inches, then the cows are moved to another section. Frequent rotation keeps the grass healthy, encourages native grasses to thrive, gets rid of weeds, and keeps parasites to a minimum.

The 70 or so cows are moved often—sometimes every few days—which allows each of the pastures to rest and recover. This labor-intensive method keeps both the cattle and the land healthy.

"To be a good cattle farmer, you need to be a good grass farmer," Nancy

Nancy Walker has found her calling, providing farm-grown beef and pork to local folks like Dustin Gentry for Earl's Street Kitchen.

said emphatically. "Soil is a living entity, and you have to respect that." Her degree in plant genetics—plus a bout with cancer a few years ago—sparked her interest in growing healthy food. "If you eat real food produced as naturally as you can find it, your body will get back in sync," she stated.

Fair Weather Thanks

This is the first November in three years that South Carolina hasn't been reeling in the wake of a new natural disaster.

I know we're all grateful for a less eventful September and October, weather-wise. We've had our share of floods and hurricanes in the last couple of years, and I'd like to think we've paid our dues for some time to come.

With Thanksgiving around the corner, I'm reminded that gratitude isn't seasonal, and our thanks to the hardworking farmers in South Carolina shouldn't be, either. We have so much to be proud of and excited about in the agriculture industry.

Crop projections for 2017 are extremely strong, and we're working hard to help farmers around our state receive the recognition they deserve for their high quality crops. Our Certified SC Grown Roots campaign has begun airing on television stations around the state – have you seen the commercials yet? Visit certifiedscgrown.com/farmers to learn more and to meet the farmers featured in our campaign.

I'm sure I don't have to remind you that with Thanksgiving week comes another important tradition... something to do with garnet and orange.... Whether you support USC or Clemson, we can all celebrate a great rivalry with our Certified SC Palmetto Series competition and more specifically, a food drive benefitting Harvest Hope and Golden Harvest food banks.

TREE CARE INSTRUCTIONS

1. Cut one inch off the tree trunk.
2. Display in stand with at least one gallon of water.
(Fresh trees will drink a gallon or two per day!)
3. Check water daily.
4. Do not place tree near a heat source.

Symbol of Farming Heritage

Old farmhouses like this were once common sights in rural South Carolina, where cotton was king for decades. While many older houses have disappeared, cotton farms are larger than ever. Some farms can encompass thousands of acres in multiple locations.

New requirements to reduce pesticide poisoning takes effect in January

New requirements aimed at reducing pesticide poisoning and injury risks are coming in January, and the Clemson Cooperative Extension Service wants all South Carolina agricultural workers to be prepared.

A workshop designed to teach workers how to comply with new requirements coming to the Environmental Protection Agency's Agricultural Worker Protection Standard is scheduled. The USDA Vegetable Lab Conference Room, 2700 Savannah Highway, Charleston, is the location for a workshop from 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Jan. 31.

Workers completing this training qualify for three pesticide recertification credits. Attendees with pesticide licenses are asked to bring their licenses with them to the training. Cost is $30 and includes all workshop materials. To register, contact Katie Moore at kcrouch@clemson.edu, or 803-417-5198.

EPA's Agricultural Worker Protection Standard is aimed at reducing the risk of pesticide poisoning and injury among agricultural workers and pesticide handlers. The standard offers protection to more than 2 million agricultural workers and pesticide handlers at more than 600,000 sites.

USDA Offers Loan Funding for Underserved Groups and Beginning Farmers

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's SC Farm Service Agency offers specially targeted loans to underserved applicants as well as beginning farmers and ranchers.

Acting executive director W. Jack Nettles reminds producers that a portion of FSA's loan funds are set aside each year to lend to targeted underserved and beginning farmers and ranchers.

For farm loan program purposes, underserved groups are women, African Americans, American Indians and Alaskan Natives, Hispanics and Asians and Pacific Islanders. In order to qualify as a beginning farmer, the individual must have operated a farm for less than 10 years.

Underserved or beginning farmers who cannot obtain commercial credit from a bank can apply for either FSA direct loans or guaranteed loans. Direct loans are made by FSA. Guaranteed loans are made by lending institutions who arrange for FSA to guarantee the loan. The FSA guarantee allows lenders to make agricultural credit available to producers who do not meet the lender's normal criteria.

The program offers two types of loans: farm ownership loans and farm operating loans. Farm ownership loans may be used to purchase or enlarge a farm, purchase easements or rights of way, build or improve buildings, promote soil and water conservation and pay closing costs.

Farm operating loans may be used to purchase livestock, poultry, farm equipment, fertilizer and other materials. They can also be used for family living expenses, refinancing debts, salaries for laborers, installing or improving water systems for home, livestock or irrigation use and other improvements.

For more information on FSA's farm loan programs and underserved and beginning farmer guidelines, contact your local FSA office by visiting <http://offices.usda.gov>.

Bobwhite Quail: Practical Management for Landowners to be Held Nov. 17

Biologists from SC Department of Natural Resources, Clemson Extension Service and the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service will spend a day discussing management of the Bobwhite Quail. Participants will interact directly with biologists as they discuss the natural history, biology and management of bobwhites and other members of the grassland bird guild.

During the classroom sessions topics will include: biology, history, population trends, various habitat management practices, predator control, and conservation efforts. The afternoon sessions will be held in the field with topics including: equipment (selection, safety, and operation), native plant identification and wildlife value, and an overview of management practices on the property.

The workshop will be held Nov. 17 at the Webb Wildlife Center in Garnett. The cost is $10 per person, with lunch included. Hours are 9 a.m.- 3 p.m. To register contact Paula Varn at 843-563-5773 or pvarn@clemson.edu

RECIPE CORNER

Featuring Certified SC Products

Apple Coleslaw

Ingredients:

2 cups cabbage, finely shredded
1 cup shredded carrots
½ green pepper, chopped
1 apple, cored and chopped
5 Tb. yogurt
1 tsp. lemon juice
Seasoning to taste: salt, pepper, dill

Directions:

Mix the cabbage, carrots, apple, and green pepper in a large mixing bowl and stir.

Make the dressing by combining the yogurt, lemon juice and seasonings in a small bowl.

Pour dressing over cabbage mixture and toss to mix.

This recipe can be prepared up to 8 hours in advance.

Store dressing and slaw separately in the refrigerator and mix just before serving.

You can add green onions, dried cranberries or chopped nuts for extra flavor and variety.

Pimento Cheese

What's a tailgate without pimento cheese sandwiches? Here's an easy recipe for homemade pimento cheese that your guests will love. You can also use it as a dip for veggies or crackers.

Ingredients:

¾ cup Dukes® Mayonnaise
½ cup Certified SC Grown Pimento Pepper, diced
8 oz. sharp cheddar cheese, grated
4 oz. sharp white cheddar cheese, grated
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. black pepper
1 tsp. cayenne pepper, optional

Instructions:

- Grate cheese and place in a mixing bowl.
- Chop pimento pepper and add to mixture.
- Stir in mayonnaise, salt, black pepper and cayenne pepper, if using, until well blended.
- Cover and refrigerate overnight.

Ag Fact: Dukes Mayonnaise is the third-largest mayonnaise brand in the United States. It was created by Mrs. Eugenia Duke at Duke's sandwich shop in Greenville in 1917.

Horses on the Beach

The annual American Heart Association ride at Myrtle Beach pulled in 1,110 horseback riders from 23 states. The event featured a 20-mile ride on the Grand Strand, five days of camping, clinics, and a costume parade. The ride is the only one of its kind in the country, and many of the participants are survivors of heart disease. The fund-raiser made $305,000 for heart research.

Clemson soybean breeders Benjamin Fallen and Emerson Shipe have developed a new soybean cultivar that extends the planting season and growing region.

New soybean cultivar extends planting season & growing region

FLORENCE— The soybean planting season and growing region have been extended thanks to researchers at Clemson University's Pee Dee Research and Education Center.

The Agustina soybean cultivar was developed and released by soybean breeders Benjamin Fallen and Emerson Shipe. Fallen said this cultivar possesses the long juvenile trait which gives it the ability to produce high yields even when days get shorter and daylight hours are fewer. The trait also allows the Agustina soybean to be grown in regions not suited for most existing soybean cultivars.

Most soybean varieties in the U.S. grow from Arkansas to Minnesota. Fallen said Agustina is more adapted and performs best in regions from latitudes 22 to 29 degrees north, which means this line offers a much-needed resource for this region. Agustina also is resistant to soybean cyst nematodes, the primary pest of soybeans.

The seed will be sold commercially in the spring of 2018. Seed also is available for research purposes or to develop new cultivars and germplasm. Contact Fallen, bfallen@clemson.edu, for more information.

Soybeans typically are planted in South Carolina from May 10 to July 11 and harvested from Oct. 20 to Dec. 30. Top-producing counties are Clarendon, Dillon, Darlington, Florence, Lee, Horry and Williamsburg.

In 2016, in acreage planted, soybean was listed as the No. 1 row crop in South Carolina. Figures from the USDA National Agricultural Statistics Service shows a total of 405,000 acres of soybeans were harvested in South Carolina last year.

The Heartbeat of SC featured at 2018 AgriBiz & Farm Expo

Agriculture is the heartbeat of South Carolina. So what better place to touch, see, taste and hear all things AG than at the sixth annual SC AgriBiz & Farm Expo?

The Expo will be held Jan. 17 and 18 at the enlarged Florence Civic Center. With free admission, expanded educational programs and engaging speakers, consumers can experience all things AG in one place.

The keynote speakers will be focusing on the No. 1 industry in South Carolina. In addition, educational programs for commercial farmers, poultry producers, and fruit and vegetable farmers are all shaping up to be popular attractions at the Expo.

New this year is an enlightening and informative women's program, which has been added to benefit every female involved in an agricultural operation. A record number of vendors are expected to showcase their latest in technology and new products.

As always, the popular "Taste of South Carolina" on Jan. 17 is an annual treat that brings all the benefits of the farmer's hard labor together by celebrating with great food and beverages. The annual

Baking Arts Offered at Horry-Georgetown Technical College

A program in baking and pastry arts is being offered for the first time at a South Carolina technical college, said chef Geoffrey Blount, the Baking and Pastry Arts chair at the institute.

He says the time is now because of a surge in people being interested in food, and in the business of food. "Certainly along with the new, emerging food scene in the Grand Strand area, cafes and other food facilities want trained pastry and bread professionals."

Back in the day, he says, "People opened cans and took things out of the freezer, but today, we're connecting with farmers and everything is fresh."

Chef Joe Bonaparte, the executive director of the college's International Culinary Institute, says, "We're seeing stores like Publix and Lowes Foods opening here, and the general public has become more informed about food."

People understand that what they eat impacts their health, he adds. "Baking and pastry arts have made a huge comeback as people are becoming more aware of what is in the food they eat," Blount says.

"Restaurants, hotels, country clubs and national retailers are now making their own baked goods and pastries in-house, and are looking for talented people to help them. This new degree is a great opportunity for anyone looking to pursue their passion and launch a career."

The five-semester program started in the fall. It includes everything from cooking techniques to business management.

Blount adds that food itself, plus the growing, gathering, preparing and presenting of food, have what he calls "layers." From that came the name – Layers – of the intern-run bakery at The Market Common campus of Horry Georgetown Technical College.

DANNY McALHANEY, D AND D FARMS

Walker Century Farms

Since she retired from Clemson, Nancy devotes nearly all her time to the farm, explaining that Bill and their son Clifton have "real jobs." Clifton and his family live in the original 1890s farmhouse, while Bill and Nancy have built a traditional-looking farmhouse a short distance away. Farm manager James Black is the only full-time employee.

Red Devon Cattle are the beef of choice at Walker Century Farms.

In addition to their Red Devon cattle, the Walkers raise purebred Tamworth and Gloucester Old Spot pigs. These breeds develop quickly and forage well, and their meat is both flavorful and tender. The pigs are pastured with access to woods, where they root for acorns and eat a natural diet. Their supplemental feed does not contain antibiotics or hormones.

In 2012 the Walkers bought and repurposed a portable classroom into retail space, which they also use to educate people about sustainable farming. They sell their beef and pork, as well as local foods like Jersey milk, butter and vegetables.

The beef is aged naturally for about two weeks.

Realizing that people need green space, about four years ago the Walkers added a pavilion that offers "city folks" an idyllic country farm setting. It is used for weddings, parties, receptions, and meetings.

The story of her journey, which is both physical and spiritual, is told in Nancy's book, "I Will Heal Their Land." An ordained minister with the Assemblies of God, she and Bill are active in the Freedom Center of Anderson. They are members of Slow Food USA, which promotes the concept that people can eat food that is good for them, good for the farmers, and good for the planet.

"It takes an effort to put the land back like it was 500 years ago. We have created a sustainable natural greenspace for our animals and visitors," Nancy said.

"Our goal is provide quality beef and pork and a sustainable greenspace."

This is your chance to help win a point for your side of this rivalry. Find out how you can get involved at our web site palmettoseries.com. Your contribution might make the difference for Clemson or Carolina.

To show our gratitude for participating in the food drive, please stop by our Certified SC Grown tailgate in the Gamecock Village four hours before kickoff on Nov. 25 and listen during the game to find out which school won the food drive match-up. The only real opponent, of course, is hunger, and our communities are the real winners in this competition.

As always, I am honored to serve as your Commissioner, and I'm grateful for the opportunity to help our farmers in South Carolina expand and thrive.

Blanche and I wish you and your family a very happy Thanksgiving filled with the blessings of family, food and fair weather.
